Open Mic & Jam Night

An illustration of various musical instruments and a microphone on a musical staff. The instruments include a guitar, drums, and a keyboard. A microphone is positioned in the foreground. The entire scene is rendered in black and white with a musical staff background.

Mics, bass, guitars, keys, drums, and light percussion are provided for use by participants, or you can bring your own instrument. Whether you're a seasoned musician or just starting, this is an opportunity to share your love of music, meet new people, and be part of a vibrant community of artists. So come on down to the library, grab a mic, and let your creativity shine!

Welcome to the 3rd edition of
"Changing the Narrative"

This project works with the North Portland Library's "Open Mic and Jam Night" to bring together artists in the open mic crowd and the music and arts underground, as well as new comers, or the curious to create a shared community. The goal is for all to be teachers and learners, sharing our knowledge, experiences and perspectives to move towards an ideal existence where the creative spirit takes its role as a focal point in our lives, and allow it serve as a force that unites us.

The open mic is just the start. All who attend and have interest are welcome to contribute to a series of creative projects produced by this community.

There will also be networking opportunities and visits from featured artists.

3 "Productivity"

Do you know what you want to create, have a realistic plan, and able to commit the needed time and resources?

Do you find the process of trial and error a welcome challenge, not a discouragement?

Only you know what is right for you, if you just want to jam or casually dabble in some writing you'd like to occasionally share, that is great, but many of us want to have something to show for our efforts or an idea...a vision we must realize.

Try to picture what a productive routine or habits would look like for you, and what kind of output you'd consider ideal.

For the release of the single "Feng Shui"

A musician, singer, rapper, producer, and host of the weekly series open mic jamz at Cafe united, Zae is a self professed "jack of all trades" and we profess, he gives us hope for the next generation. Oozing positive energy, musical talent, and the demeanor of a natural leader, he brings both a powerful musical contribution, but a sense of joy to each event he's hopped on with the Media Hijack crew.

However, above all, you know your old friend and collaborator, G"Odd, loves nothing more than a good song. Feng Shui has been on repeat in my brain for a few days, and I can't get enough. This is a hit, this is a rock star, come get some while you can.
